

Lepidoptera species (Macrolepidoptera) recorded and reported from the Western Stara Planina Mountain, NW Bulgaria

Stoyan BESHKOV

Summary:

This paper records the distribution data of 727 Macrolepidoptera species from the Bulgarian part of the Western Stara Planina Mountain. Until now, this area was one of the least explored one of Bulgaria. The present study covers the region situated between the Iskarski Prolom Gorge in the east, the Proboynitza River in the north and the Bulgaria-Yugoslavia borderline in the west. Ponor, Mala Planina and some other parts of the Western Stara Planina Mountains are included in the study area, even though they do not belong to the main crest of the mountain. Vrachanska Planina is excluded from this study. Each species recorded from this area is listed with original capture data and literature capture data when available. Most of the recorded species are new for this area. Many others are reported from new localities and different dates than previously known from within this region. Several species are confirmatory records for the country. Some others are known from only very few places inside Bulgaria. Material sampling was done in almost all parts of the region by different methods.

Key words: Lepidoptera - Macrolepidoptera - faunistics - Bulgaria - Western Stara Planina mountain.

The Western Stara Planina Mountain region is defined for the purpose of this study as the area bounded in the east by the Iskarski Prolom Gorge, in the north by the Proboynitza River and in the west by the Bulgaria-Yugoslavia borderline. However, the data from Vrachanska Planina Mts are not included here. All data from the low-altitude situated slopes of the mountain are included, as well. Many other data, both in the literature and collection materials are existing from the Iskarski Prolom gorge. It includes Ponor, Mala Planina and some other places, which do not belong to the main crest but make an integral part of the mountain. Vrachanska Planina Mountain is not included here. Lepidoptera sampling of this area was done at low as well as at high altitudes. Literature data concerning this region are very scarce. There is only one paper devoted in its entirety to the study of the Western Stara Planina Mountain Macrolepidoptera fauna, published by TULESHKOW in 1931. It records 105 species from data gathered between Oreshetz Railway Station and Martinova Tchouka Peak. Some more data were published by BURESCH & TULESHKOW (1929-1943), SLIVOV, SLIVOV & LUKOV, GANEV, MESZAROS, RONKAY, HERCZIG, SZABOKY & SZEKE, BESHKOV. Most of these, however, limit their scope to the late Autumn fauna around the Petrohan Pass and the town of Belogradchik.

In contrast, there is a rich body of data, both in collected material and in publications, from the Iskarski Prolom Gorge. It is not included here because the area east of the Iskar River was not the subject of the present investigation. Data about the Lepidoptera fauna of the Iskarski Prolom Gorge have been published by TULESHKOW (1931), BOCHAROV (1959), SLIVOV (1967, 1968, 1972). Unfortunately, most of the data presented by SLIVOV (1972) lack accurate localization, which makes them useless. Some of these data were reconsidered recently by BESHKOV (1993, 1998) and by NESTOROVA (1998) and placed in the general area of the "Western Stara Planina". These data are not included here.

The present study recorded the Macrolepidoptera occurrence in different parts of the mountain, from the low altitudes to the highest peaks, in all seasons. The material was collected at lamps powered either by regular household power outlets or by portable generators, in light traps and in bait traps using a sugar-red wine mixture. Taxa considered difficult were confirmed by genitalic dissections. Additional records were gathered from the material deposited in the National Museum of Natural History (NMNH) and in the Institute of Zoology, both in Sofia. Very valuable was the material collected and put at the disposal of this study by Dr. Georgi GEORGIEV of the Institute of Forestry in Sofia. His records are from the area of Gorni Lom village. Our original sampling material and the material from the different collections amounted to 549 species. Of these, about 400 are new for the Stara Planina Mountain fauna. A thorough literature search added 178 more species for a total of 727 species recorded from the investigated area. This is nearly half of the Macrolepidoptera species recorded for the entire country. The only Bulgarian record of Cerastis leucographa comes from this region. Some other, very rare Bulgarian species, have duplicating records from this area (Autographa bractea, Polychrysis moneta, Cucullia lucifuga, Gortyna cervago). Half the number of the species that are protected in Bulgaria occur in the Western Stara Planina Mountain, where they can sometimes be locally abundant. The balkanic endemic taxon Dasyptolia templi vecchiontium was described from this place. Other endemic subspecies found here are Erebia orientalis macrophthalma and Erebia albergana phorcys. Conisania renati meszarosi VARGA & RONKAY is most likely also endemic for this region. There are 13 endemic and subendemic taxa recorded for the Western Stara Planina Mountain. This number is much higher than for any other region of the country. There are also 8 ice age relict species that are found here. Examples of species that were previously known only from the southern part of the country are Eugnorisma pontica, Divana haywardi, Euxoa hastifera and Perissomena caecigena. About 50 species are known from only one or two localities in the country, aside from the Western Stara Planina Mountain. Some of these are Korscheltellus lupulinus dacicus, Melitaea arduinna rhodopensis, Cryphia fraudatricula, Apamea oblonga, Arenostola phragmitidis, Luperina testacea, Xylena lunifera, Euxoa hastifera, E. glabella, E. vitta hercegovinensis.

The listing of the species follows O. KARSHOLT & J. RAZOWSKI's distributional checklist of the European Lepidoptera from 1996. The localities and dates are given in chronological order, starting with the original records and continuing with the literature data.

Probably the locality Midzhur is wrongly given instead of Martinova Tchouka; because from the articles of TULESCHKOW is clear, that the collected specimen is only one. The synonymy of the subspecies seems to be problematic for me, because S. lucerneae illyrica is a light form, but bureschi is a dark one. Unfortunately, from S. lucerneae bureschi does not exist a larger series, I think.
